ABSTRACT
Winding up of a company is the process whereby the life of a company is ended and the property of a company is administered for the benefit of its creditors and the members. When the company presents its petition for winding up the Board of Directors of a company stops functioning and the powers of the BODs is vested with the ‘liquidator’ who takes the control of the company, collects its assets, pays its debts and finally distributes any surplus among the members in accordance with their respective rights. The Insolvency and bankruptcy code, 2016 (IBC) is a landmark development in the dynamic world of our country. The code is a revolutionary change brought to amend the existing provisions of the Companies Act, 2013 as it entirely removed the provisions of voluntary winding up in the Companies Act, 2013.

The ICB, 2016 consolidate and amend the laws relating to insolvency of companies, partnership firms, limited liability partnership into a single legislation. It aims to provide time bound resolution and empowered the creditors to initiate the insolvency resolution process if default occurs. The authors in the present research would enlighten the comparison of the provisions of winding up of a Company between the Companies Act, 2013 and the provisions of winding up in the IBC, 2016. The research would be a doctrinal research and during the course of research the authors would be referring to existing literatures and various judicial pronouncements given by the tribunals and courts.

At the end of this research the author would be able to draw a clear distinction and comparison of the winding up provisions under the existing Company laws and the new code, i.e the IBC, 2016.

INTRODUCTION
MEANING OF WINDING UP
The winding up of a company is the process by which the assets of the company are collected and sold in order to pay its debts. In the words of Pennington\(^1\) winding up or liquidation is the process by which the management of a company’s affairs is taken out of its director’s hands, its assets are realized by a liquidator, and its debts and liabilities are discharged out of the proceeds of realization and any surplus of assets remaining is returned to its members or shareholders. Generally, winding up is the last option available to a company in case the company is unable to pay its debts and liabilities to its members and shareholders through any alternative options. When the wind up of a company is completed, first the company is dissolved and then it ceases to exist.

Broadly a company can be dissolved by two ways, first is when the tribunal or court passes an order to compulsory wind up that company on the grounds of petition presented in the Tribunal or Court and Secondly, when a resolution is passed in the General meeting of members to wind up the company.

INTRODUCTION OF THE INSOLVENCY AND BANKRUPTCY CODE, 2016
Before the introduction of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, the winding up of a company was solely and exclusively governed by the Companies Act, 1956 and under the supervision of the Courts. After the introduction of the Companies Act, 2013 the provisions specified under the 1956 Act were carried forward with some minimal changes to the Companies Act, 2013. However, in the original form the provisions of the winding up under the Companies Act, 2013 were never notified and the winding up henceforth continued to be broadly governed by the provisions mentioned in the old 1956 Act. Both the Acts allowed a company to be wound up by two ways i.e, Compulsory winding up and Voluntary winding up. The grounds for winding up of a company were also specified in the provisions of the Companies Act. The introduction of the IBC, 2016 brought major and important changes in the provisions governing the winding up of a Company.

Some of the major and notable changes brought up by the introduction of the IBC, 2016 in the winding up of a company are as follows:
- The introduction of IBC, 2016 removed the inability to pay debts as a ground of compulsory winding up of a company.
- The introduction of the IBC, 2016 sweep out the part in the companies Act which dealt with the Voluntary winding up of a company.

MODES OF WINDING UP OF A COMPANY UNDER COMPANIES ACT, 2013

a) BEFORE THE INSOLVENCY AND BANKRUPTCY CODE, 2016
Before the introduction of the IBC, 2016 a company can be wound up by two modes and the Companies Act provides provisions for the same. Section 270 of the Companies Act, 2013 provides that the winding up of a company may be either-
a) By the Tribunal, i.e, compulsory winding up or
b) Voluntary i.e, by passing of an appropriate resolution for voluntary winding up at a general meeting of members.

b) AFTER THE INSOLVENCY AND BANKRUPTCY CODE, 2016
After the introduction of the IBC, 2016 the Section 270 of the Companies Act, 2013 stands amended. Due to the notification of Section 255 of the IBC, 2016 the provisions of voluntary winding up of a company are omitted from the Companies Act, 2013. Section 255 of the IBC, 2016 provides that the Companies Act, 2013 shall be amended as in the manner provides in the Eleventh Schedule. The provisions of voluntary winding up of a company now fall under Section 59 of the IBC, 2016 which deals with the voluntary liquidation of the corporate persons. Earlier this section under the IBC, 2016 was not notified therefore the question prevails that whether the Companies Act or the IBC, 2016 would govern the voluntary winding up. To this Section 468(3) of the Companies Act, 2013 provided that the rules framed by the hon’ble Supreme Court before the commencement of the companies act, 2013 shall continue to be in force till the time new rules are framed to that effect by the Central Government. Now on 31st March, 2017 IBBI has notified the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India (Voluntary Liquidation Process) Regulations, 2017. The same is published in the official Gazette of India. Hence, till now it is settled that the provisions of the Voluntary winding up of a company under the 2013 Act stands omitted after the IBC, 2016 and the voluntary winding up of a company would be governed by the IBC, 2016 only.

COMPULSORY WINDING UP OF A COMPANY UNDER COMPANIES ACT, 2013

MEANING

A compulsory winding up of a company is winding up of a company when it is ordered by the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT). The tribunal makes a winding up order on an application presented by any persons who are entitled to present a petition under the provisions of the Companies Act, 2013.

GROUNDs FOR COMPULSORY WINDING UP UNDER COMPANIES ACT, 2013

a) BEFORE THE INSOLVENCY & BANKRUPTCY CODE, 2016

Before the IBC, 2016 under Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013 total 7 grounds for the Compulsory winding up of a company were provided. Any person entitled under Section 272 of the Companies Act, 2013 can file a petition on these 7 grounds before the tribunal in order to seek a winding up of a company. The grounds are as follows:

i. if the company is unable to pay its debts;

ii. if the company has, by special resolution, resolved that the company be wound up by the Tribunal;

iii. if the company has acted against the interests of the sovereignty and integrity of India, the security of the State, friendly relations with foreign States, public order, decency or morality;

iv. if the Tribunal has ordered the winding up of the company under Chapter XIX;

v. if on an application made by the Registrar or any other person authorized by the Central Government by notification under this Act, the Tribunal is of the opinion that the affairs of the company have been conducted in a fraudulent manner or the company was formed for fraudulent and unlawful purpose or the persons concerned in the formation or management of its affairs have been guilty of fraud, misfeasance or misconduct in connection therewith and that it is proper that the company be wound up;

vi. if the company has made a default in filing with the Registrar its financial statements or annual returns for immediately preceding five consecutive financial years;

vii. if the Tribunal is of the opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

b) AFTER THE INSOLVENCY &
BANKRUPTCY CODE, 2016.

The introduction of the IBC, 2016 has a sweeping effect on the provisions of winding up of a company. After the introduction of IBC, 2016 the ground under which a company can seek winding up by presenting a petition when there is inability to pay debts [Section 271(1) (a)] in a tribunal under Section 272 of the Companies Act, 2013
stands omitted by the virtue of Section 255 of the IBC, 2016. However the same is dealt with Sections 7 to 9 of the IBC, 2016, being initiation of corporate insolvency resolution process by financial and operational creditors.

Presently only 5 grounds for winding up of a company are prevailing under Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013,
and the satisfaction of these grounds by the tribunal leads to the winding up of a company. However the tribunal as long as possible will try to figure out the ways such that a company could be saved from winding up and the last available option available for a tribunal is the dissolution of a company.

VOLUNTARY WINDING UP OF A COMPANY UNDER THE
INSOLVENCY AND BANKRUPTCY
CODE, 2016

Earlier the provisions concerning the voluntary winding up of a company were contained under Section 304-325 of the Companies Act, 2013 although these were not notified and hence the voluntary winding up of a company was governed by the Companies Act, 1956 until the IBC got the assent of president on 28/05/2016 to introduce the IBC, 2016 and as per Section 255 of the Code the sections of voluntary winding up of a company are ‘omitted’ from the Companies Act, 2013. The same is now governed by Section 59 of the code which was notified on April 2017. As a result the voluntary winding up of a company shall be governed by the IBC, 2016.

summarized as that the compulsory winding up of a Company is governed by the Companies Act, 2013 and the grounds for the compulsory winding up are mentioned in Section 271 of the Companies Act, 2013 and due to the effect of Section 255 of the Insolvency and bankruptcy Code, 2016, Section 271(1) (a) of the old companies Act, 2013 is omitted which was winding up on the ground of inability to pay debts. Also, the whole part of the Companies act which dealt with the voluntary winding up of a company is omitted from the Act and it is now governed by the IBC, 2016. The tribunals and the liquidators play a major role in the winding up of a company. The main objective in shifting the proceedings of winding up from the courts to the tribunal is mainly to shift the burden from the courts. It is very interesting after the introduction of the code to see that how the tribunals will deal with the winding up proceedings applying both the 2013 Act and the Code.
